

HISTORY

South Bay Vocational Center was incorporated in 1952 as a non-profit 501(c)3 organization. The organization started as a school for individuals with special needs. As the years went by staff members developed a packaging process center that trained individuals with disability on packaging skills. These individuals learn and mastered packaging skills while they earn a paycheck.

South Bay Vocational Center staff members continued to develop techniques that enhances the worker's flow of work.

MISSION-VISION-VALUES

Mission

South Bay Vocational Center mission is to provide vocational training, advocacy, counseling, and opportunities for individuals with disabilities.
